Job Search Engines

Job search engines are specilized Internet job sites that collect and list open jobs. These sites include job posts from both job boards and directly from employers. Internet job boards are now the primary method that employers use to post their jobs. In searching for employment, you should search the Idaho Department of Labor's database, a specific employer's web site, and these commonly used job search sites:

- www.ziprecruiter.com
- www.monster.com
- www.carreerbuilder.com
- www.indeed.com
- www.idahohelpwanted.com
- www.simplyhired.com
- www.craigslist.org
